

Elie Chammas MD, FESC, FACC

Member of the Board of Trustees of AUNOHR

e.chammas@aunohr.edu.lb

Dr. Elie Chammas is Chief of the Heart Center at Clemenceau Medical Center (affiliated with Johns Hopkins International).

Professor of Cardiology and head of Department at the Lebanese University. He is also past President of Lebanese Society of Cardiology.

With over 20 years of experience in Cardiology, Dr. Chammas is a member of many Cardiology and Echocardiography societies including French, American, Lebanese and European. He is fellow of the European Society of Cardiology and the American College of Cardiology.

Dr. Chammas has a special interest in research, being a reviewer for many reputable journals including Lebanese Medical Journal, Heart journal and European Heart Journal and Euroecho meetings.

Dr. Chammas holds a Medical Doctor diploma from the University of Paris – France 1987 and Cardiology Diploma from the University of Lille - France 1991 where he was Associate Professor of Cardiology till 1993.

In addition to cardiology, Dr. Chammas has many interests like History, especially Egyptology, History of Religions, Human Rights, Ecology and marine aquariums.

December 2017